

Dear Carousell,

I've been looking for a small/medium sized start-up, where my existence would make a difference, somewhere that could give me excitement where "work doesn't feel like work".

Then I came across the Carousell's career page a few months back and saw an opening on the 'Software Backend Engineer' position. I was overjoyed as it was a position that I was deeply interested in and a community that I would really love to join.

I have always wanted to work in a SaaS start-up where I can focus on working on projects that provides a valuable service to the community. My previous company, Trinax PTE LTD (which was great) was a consulting business where I spent much time facing clients and building web-applications that were mostly event-focused and would be tore down in a couple of days or weeks time-span

During the period of working as a Web Developer in Trinax PTE LTD. I have built web applications for multiple companies such as Macallan, BreadTalk, Pocari Sweat, DBS, SK-II, etc.

As you can see from my testimonials. I am someone who works hard and desire challenges. I may not be very experienced, but what I lack in age, I make up in my pace of learning. I'm not afraid to be always learning new technology, nor taking up multiple roles.

I would love to have the opportunity to come in for an interview at your earliest convenience. If you require any additional information, I can be contacted at +65 91189793, or you can send an email to "maxgohjh@gmail.com".

Thank you so much for taking the time to read this. Please take a look at the www.maxgohjh.com as I've created it specifically for this job interview.

Yours Sincerely,
Max Goh
